

About John Barbush

In May of 2008 my former company brought a lawsuit against me. This was one of the most disturbing things that had ever happened to me. I, as an individual, with limited resources, had to defend myself against a company with $12 million in sales per year. I had spoken to an attorney that I knew to get a recommendation. He recommended John Barbush. From the moment that I had my initial consultation with John, I knew that I had the right person on my side. John took the case very personally, and defended me as though he would be defending himself or a member of his family.

John knew it was either win, or I would have to file bankruptcy. He also knew that this was a personal vendetta against me. He treated the case with the voracity, and fervor of someone who also had something at stake. John also knew the toll this was taking on me, and even on my worst days he was supportive and calming. He always made me feel as though he was in total control, and things would work out.

When trial came, this is where John shined even brighter than through all of the preliminary activities. He presented my case in a very aggressive, yet professional manner. If this wasn't happening to me, I would have enjoyed sitting in the court room just to watch him beat up on the so called big boys that the plaintiff hired.

I would recommend John to anyone who is looking for council and wants a top flight attorney on their side.
